We see it stated in the papers that all of the county chairmen of the State except four were present at the meeting called by Gov. Manning in Columbia on April 30. We suppose this means the Democratic county chairmen. We would like to ask if these four who were not present were invited to be at the conference. And who they are. We know at least one of the four who offered to do anything that might be in his line to do and to cooperate with the governor who received no invitation to attend the conference, but he happened not to be a supporter of the governor in his last race. Wonder if that had anything to do with his failure to receive an invitation to the conference.

SWINGING AROUND.

As stated in the last issue of The Herald and News Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Luther Aull have been on a visit to their son, the editor of The Herald and News for the past few days and we have done nothing but take them around among the scenes of their younger days and to meet some of their relatives who still live in that section of the county. It has been a pleasure to us and we are frank to admit that they seem to have stood the travel better than we have. On Friday we went to Pomaria and Prosperity and on Saturday to Little Mountain and on Sunday we went to old St. Pauls Lutheran church for service. There are very few there now who were members of the congregation when they left that community some 45 years ago. Still it was pleasant to visit the scene and bring back the memories of other days.

Saturday afternoon we spent an hour at the old home. The same hills are there and the old spring flows under the everlasting hills, but there are many changes. The old place looks desolate and not like the busy scene which they remembered when they left it.

It was a pleasure to have them with us and we hope they may be able to come again and remain longer. We are thankful they are so strong and healthy and are still able to enjoy life.

We can't help remarking that the road from Little Mountain to Prosperity is rougher than we have ever seen it and we can't help wondering why it is that the red clay would crystallize in such hard bumps equal to the rocks of that section of the county. If the drag just could be used at the time it is needed and should be used we would have some, at least, passable roads.

The Audubon society met in Columbia on Saturday and wrangled for several hours. The fight was between the Richardson forces and the Gibbs forces. Richardson had a majority present and the society passed some long resolutions and again sent the name of Mr. Richardson to Gov. Manning for appointment as a warden. The society should have taken our advice and sent in a new name.

The conscription boards are getting busy for the registration of those of our boys who come between the ages of 21 and 31 for service in the army. We hate to see it going on because we hate to see our boys sent to the trenches.

SOCIAL.

Mrs. Powell E. Way entertained the members of her club in a delightful manner Saturday afternoon at her attractive home in Calhoun street. Six members were present and after a happy social hour delightful fruit punch and cake was served.

Mrs. W. H. Wallace entertained Thursday at a charming rock party in compliment to Mrs. Walter B. Wallace, a recent bride, and Miss Lucile Wallace. The four tables for rock were placed in the library and parlor, which were beautifully decorated, red roses being used in profusion. Those enjoying Mrs. Wallace's hospitality were: Mrs. Walter Wallace, Miss Lucile Wallace, Mesdames Tom Mayes, Leland Summer, D. J. Burns, C. D. Weeks, R. D. Smith, Jr., W. R. Reid, Robert Parks, Misses Josie Reid, Ocie Griffin, Blanche Smith, Lucy Wallace, Eunice Dora Burns, Lucy Spears and Miss Lou Jones of Ridge Spring. After several games of rock a delightful ice course was served.

An enjoyable children's party was given Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. T. C. Pool to her grandsons, Ellerbe and Brantley Pelham. Eighteen children were invited and many interesting games were played. Delightful refreshments were served late in the evening.

The banquet given by the junior class Friday evening in compliment to the members of the senior class of Newberry college was a most delightful and enjoyable event. The dining room of the Savoy hotel was prettily decorated for the occasion, the long tables having red roses for their centerpiece. A number of impromptu speeches were made and toasts given by members of each class.

The following notice of the banquet is from the college correspondence in The State of Sunday:

The principal event of the past week on the campus was the annual junior-senior banquet, given by the juniors in honor of the senior class. The banquet was served by the Asso-

Their Sixty-First Anniversary

Throuhg More Than Three-Score Years Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Aull Have Trod Life's Pathway Together.

(By John K. Aull.)

To Jacob Luther Aull and Julia Ann Haltiwanger Aull, who have trod life's pathway and shared its joys and its sorrows, its hopes and its fears, its sunshine and its shadows, for three score years and one, hand in hand together, their children and their children's children, and their children, and all their friends and loved ones, bring greeting on this the 61st anniversary of their marriage.

A union extending through two generations, and well into the third, lived neighbors and respected by all who have known them.

Descended from a race which in whose creed labor is holy, the work of their hands has been gladly and zealously done, and their minds and hearts have been kept pure by clean living and right thinking. They are of that sturdy citizenship whose combined efforts have made the nation great in resources and have glorified it with high ideals.

It is fitting that on the anniversary of their marriage they should have in simplicity and love and honor! A long journey through a country fragrant with the flowers of happiness because enriched with the usefulness of service! Truly the God of their fathers has dealt gently and kindly with them. And now they sojourn in the golden land of the sunset, where tender memories of happy days paint the landscape in the soft purple of twilight, and in a faith which knows no fear they look out upon that vast ocean which bounds it, somewhere in whose expanse they see dimly the "island-valley of Avilion; where falls not hail, or rain, or any snow, nor ever wind blows loudly; but it lies deep-meadow'd, happy, fair with orchard lawns and bowery hollows crown'd with summer sea."

When the history of this continent was in the making, long ere it had entered the minds of the fathers to found a republic in the western world whose flag should be for all men an emblem of liberty, their forefathers, in search of political and religious freedom, journeyed here, across the Atlantic, from a land with whose rulers this nation is now at war. Nearly 82 years ago, Jacob Luther Aull was born on the old home place, in the lower part of Newberry county. More than 35 years ago, Julia Haltiwanger first saw the light in old Edgefield county (now Saluda) near where Trinity Lutheran church points the way. On May 22, 1856, they were married, and they lived in the Aull homestead until 1872, when they moved to their present home in Greenwood county. Their union was made happy by the birth of seven children, all of whom are living but one, who died in infancy. Good health has fallen to their lot, and today they exemplify what manner of sweet old age comes in the declining years of a life lived simply and well. Born on the farm and reared on the farm, they have remained on the farm, free from the ceaseless rush and the continuous clamor and grind of thickly populated communities, and they have pursued the even tenor of their way, in the fear of God, as taught by the Lutheran faith handed down to them from the centuries that are gone, loved by their come among the scenes of their younger years. It is to them a hallowed land, which holds the dust of their people of other days; in whose fields, spreading out before them smiling and sun-kissed with memories, stands the home where 61 years ago today they began life together, with hopes running high, and with love painting the future a roseate hue; where still live many of the friends and near ones of yesteryear.

And now, it only remains for me to say that the prayer of their children and their children's children, and their children, and all their friends and loved ones, who have brought this greeting, is that they may be spared yet many years of health and of happiness; and "when the dark does come, that still above the shadows, will linger God's white thought for them, to light to perfect paths."

And I know that their prayer for their loved ones today "is that they shall know and hold each joy and hope they long to have—not the wistful-wished desire that shall come awhile and tremble in its beauty and flicker back to emptiness from which it came, but that the dreams that God has made for them, shall be and linger with and bless them. For these are not the wishes that a common world would give, but the pleading that shall always be for them; that shall abide by them at every corner of their life that waits. And even along the straight, glad-wide stretches of their days shall it be above them; in the dark and drearied ways of shadows, that, mayhap, shall come again, shall it hold out its hands for them; and as its reward shall ask that they be stayed; that they be upheld by God's eternal arms; that life's rough stepping stones be gentle for them," until that time shall come when, life's journey over, they shall reach that land where they shall "never get tired at all."

"And only the Master shall praise us, And only the Master shall blame, And no one shall work for money, And no one shall work for fame, But each for the joy of the doing, And each in his separate star, Shall paint the thing as he sees it, For the God of things as they are."

ciate Reformed Presbyterian ladies on Friday evening at the dining room of the Savoy hotel. About 80 were present. The following program was carried out immediately after the supper:

Toastmaster, B. F. Kaiser, president of the junior class; "The Class of '17," Miss Teresa Maybin; response, O. B. Mayer, Jr.; "Our Inspiration—the Cods," W. H. Shealy; response, Miss Amy Werts; "The Gown and the Gun," S. M. Derrick; "The Faculty," W. R. Wicker; "Farewell," R. W. Sease. The following responded to impromptu toasts: R. Boche, H. D. Byting, Miss A. Klettner, H. Langford, Miss Sema Williamson, Miss Katherine Edra.

GLEN-LOWRY MILL NOW IN NEW HANDS

William Coleman is Succeeded as President by Alex Long.

Whitmire, May 20.—There was a great deal of interest here a few days ago when it was rumored that the management of the Glen-Lowry cotton mill had been changed. The people of the community have been on the tip-toe of expectation till today, when William Coleman, former president of the mill, made a speech to a number of people in front of the mill. He said he had agreed to sell his interest to New York parties with the privilege of buying it back. Alex Long of Rock Hill was here yesterday and took charge of the plant as president and manager. Mr. Coleman made a fine address, bringing applause from those who heard him. He has done much to make Whitmire and is held in high esteem here.

Death of An Infant.

The 11 months old child of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Gilliam, living on Mr. C. L. Leitzsey's place, died Sunday afternoon and was buried at Mt. Pleasant on Monday afternoon.

THE COLORED PEOPLE AT HANNAH CHURCH

On Thursday, May 17, at 4 o'clock, at Hannah A. M. E. church, in the Utopia section, the colored people had a very interesting meeting on food and feedstuffs. The meeting was opened in the usual way by the pastor, the Rev. J. C. Coaxum, and prayer was offered by the Rev. I. W. Dominick, after which the business was turned over to the chairman, O. L. Singleton.

After stating the object of the meeting and the pressing need of the country, there being four white men present they were called on to make addresses. Mr. H. L. Boulware made the first talk. He spoke of the pressing need of our preparing food for ourselves; that the West could not afford to help us much longer because the help will have to go the other way.

Mr. J. A. Foy spoke next. He impressed the idea that the thing to do was to do now and not talk; that "Uncle Sam" was only allowing us a chance to help ourselves and if we do not he had a place for us.

Mr. J. J. Davis spoke on the line of economy; that it was just as important to save as it was to make. He gave us a nice, timely talk.

Mr. O. W. Long also spoke on preparedness. The crowd was very attentive to hear what he was doing in that direction.

Next to speak was Dr. J. L. Duckett. He said that T. A. Williams had asked him to take his place as he could not get here. The doctor is a fine talker and he well mastered the situation.

Next to talk was Wade McNary and A. Moon.

After the speaking was over O. L. Singleton, who conducted the meeting, asked for a hand primary; that every one who expected to do more in the way of foodstuff to hold up their hand. Every hand went up, white and colored.

The meeting then adjourned until some time in June.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer will meet with Mrs. T. J. Hayes Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock.
